

FRAMELESS GLASSWALLS

Holy Name of Jesus Church Indialantic, FL USA

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The architect wanted to separate the main section of the sanctuary of this church from an overflow area with glass panels. At first, he was faced with the fact that a floor track was required with the various systems he investigated. When he learned that Hufcor could provide an operable glass system without a floor track, he liked the idea.

The product: Hufcor provided standard tempered glass. The rails and optional vertical edge trim were painted white. After installation, a local artist etched the design into the glass.

The result is an extremely attractive method to section off one area of the church from another area.

Hufcor Glasswall separates the sanctuary from the overflow area of this Florida Church.
